

TITAN SKY
WASTE & RECYCLING

You're Probably a Hoarder of Electronic Waste

WEEE WASTE

Yes, you. That drawer full of ancient Nokia phones? That tangle of mystery cables that might summon a demon if arranged correctly? Those 47 remote controls for devices you no longer own? You're sitting on a toxic gold mine, my friend.

Here's the thing nobody tells you:

Your beloved broken toaster isn't just taking up space - it's packed with materials that could either be recycled into something useful OR leak heavy metals into the environment for generations to come. But hey, no pressure on which option you choose.

What even is WEEE waste?

WEEE stands for Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment, which is a delightfully redundant acronym that basically means "that thing with a plug or battery you're keeping 'just in case.'" Spoiler alert: you'll never need it.

What we will take:

- Phones
- Computers
- Kitchen appliances
- Cables
- Basically anything that once lit up, beeped, or made you feel technologically superior
- Kitchen white goods
- Vapes and Batteries
- PCB's and circuit boards we will pay for, yes reddie for your WEEE

The best part?

It's FREE. We literally just want your electronic waste. We'll even make you feel like an environmental hero while doing the absolute bare minimum required by law. And sometimes if there is enough of one particular item we will pay you for some of it.

It's a win win for everyone!
